

Fall into fundraising.

Autumn is the time when you start to wrap up with big coats, scarves and hats but that doesn't mean you have to wrap up your fundraising. This season is the perfect setting for a sense of comfort, warmth and reflection.

Fundraising a part of #TeamGuideDogs will help people with sight loss to live life as they choose, just like Priya.

When I was partnered with my first dog, Wilf, it was love at first sight!

He gave me the confidence to go out more and do everyday things, like picking up Lucy from school. I never wanted her to feel responsible for looking after me, and since I've had guide dogs, she can concentrate on living her own life as a young woman.

Having a guide dog is a life-changing experience and I'm phenomenally grateful to Guide Dogs for enabling me to be more independent.

A vibrant Halloween party scene. In the foreground, a man in a white shirt, red tie, and dark vest smiles while serving drinks at a bar. The bar is decorated with pumpkins, including one with a black spider on top, and various cocktails. In the background, a woman with long curly hair wears a black witch hat, and another woman in a black dress with white polka dots smiles. The atmosphere is festive with blue and red lighting and a chandelier in the background.

Get your fright on!

Arrange a spook-tacular Halloween party. This could be an office Halloween party, at home or at your local community centre. Sell tickets with all proceeds going towards your fundraising or sell tasty treats on the night.

Pumpkin carving contest

Organise a pumpkin carving competition, charge a small fee for people to enter, with proceeds going towards your fundraising.

A person in a silver astronaut suit is dancing in the center of a room. The room is decorated for a Halloween party with colorful lights (blue, purple, green) and streamers. Other people are visible in the background, some dancing and some watching. The astronaut suit is highly reflective and has a clear helmet. The person is holding a small object in their right hand. The overall atmosphere is festive and lively.

Best dressed wins

Everyone loves a fancy-dress party, organise a Halloween fancy dress competition. Best outfit wins a prize!

Food for the win

Arrange an apple bobbing competition

A woman with her hair in a bun, wearing a green and blue plaid dress and a gold necklace, is cooking in a kitchen. She is pouring oil from a glass bottle into a large metal pan on a stove. In the foreground, there are several small bowls containing ingredients, including a pink bowl with green herbs. The background shows a kitchen with shelves and various items.

National curry week

Whether you're heading out to your local curry house or dusting off the apron and mastering a recipe, arrange a curry night for your nearest and dearest, or get sponsored for eating a curry every day of the week.

Go out with a bang!

Host a bonfire night with your nearest and dearest. To make sure it goes off with a bang include plenty of fireworks and sparklers.
